

About Wellness in the Schools

Wellness in the Schools (WITS) is a national nonprofit that teaches kids healthy habits to learn and live better. We partner with school districts to provide nutrition and fitness education, healthy scratch-cooked meals, and active recess periods. Our approach improves student outcomes and drives systemic, long-term change.

About Chefs in the Schools

Chefs in the Schools, an initiative of WITS, was developed in partnership with local chefs and the New York City (NYC) Department of Education (DOE) Office of Food and Nutrition Services, to expand the lunch menu of the largest school district in the country. The groundbreaking partnership will develop scratch-cooked, plant-based, and culturally relevant recipes in partnership with a newly formed Chef Council and the NYC Department of Education Office of Food and Nutrition Services (OFNS). The Council, chaired by Rachael Ray, includes celebrated chefs, culinary industry professionals, and food activists. The new recipes will be taste-tested in schools across all five boroughs during the 2022–23 school year.

The Chefs in the Schools initiative is based on three core principles: 1) that school lunch is scratch-cooked, using fresh, whole ingredients to prepare meals that capture original flavors and provide maximum nutrition; 2) that meals are plant-based (not excluding other foods in moderation), which will support a plant-forward future; and 3) that the meals are culturally relevant, representing the diverse cultures of the 1.1 million NYC public school children. After a year of taste-testing and refining the recipes with OFNS, WITS will hire 100 WITS Chefs to train NYC school cooks on techniques to prepare the meals.
